Indian and World History

Thapar School of Liberal Arts and Sciences (TSLAS), Patiala, India, invites applications for full-time positions. Applicants should have a Ph.D. degree, or should be completing their Ph.D. by the time of joining (for entry level), in the field of Indian or World History, with specialisations of either ancient, medieval or the modern period from highly reputed institutions and a good academic record. Knowledge of one of the Indian classical or medieval languages – Sanskrit, Prakrit, Apbhramsha, Persian, or any of the medieval regional, vernacular languages – and its demonstrated use is particularly desirable for candidates of ancient/medieval/early modern History.

TSLAS is a new school that is a part of the Thapar Institute of Engineering and Technology (TIET) — an old and prestigious engineering and science institute in Patiala, India. It aims to be a leading centre of Liberal Arts and Sciences. The school retains all core disciplines by awarding majors/minors in History, Literary and Cultural Studies, Sociology, Economics, Philosophy, Psychology and the disciplines of natural – Physical and Life Sciences amongst others. TSLAS encourages an inclusive environment with high-quality research and teaching.

We offer competitive compensation and benefits, and an initial competitive research grant (Seed money) of up to INR 8,00,000 lakhs as per the institute policy.

The application includes (1) a cover letter, (2) a curriculum vitae and (3) two published papers (article length). The complete application should be sent to teach-at-tslas@thapar.edu.

This is a rolling advertisement. We welcome early applications from interested and eligible candidates.
